3.3 To enter the competition:

- For the purpose of this competition, we are defining leftovers as the food remaining after the rest has been used, so this could be half a bag of flour, or half an onion you have left in the fridge from a previous recipe, or a bit of frozen Bolognese from the freezer.
- Our leftover legends competition is open to Rainbows, Brownies, Guides and Rangers, who can enter as individuals or work together as a unit to create and submit their recipe.
- To enter, first of all, please let a parent, guardian or leader know you'd like to take part in the competition, and if you're under 14 please either copy them in the email or ask them to submit your entry for you.
- Remember to stay safe in the kitchen and ask for help with things like chopping and hot ovens and dishes.

- To be taken into consideration, all recipes must come with a picture, a list of ingredients used and a step-by-step explanation of how you've made your dish. Please make sure that the photos you submit are only showing the food you've cooked! For GDPR reasons please do not include identifiable imagery such as faces.
- Every dish should contain at least 2 fruits or vegetables.
- Every dish must contain at least 3 items from your fridge or cupboard that have already been opened, even better if they're close to their use by date.
- You can add up to 3 ingredients from your fridge or pantry that haven't been opened yet to your recipe with, make sure to ask your parent or carer for permission before doing so.
- Extra points will be awarded for: how creative the name of your dish is, presentation on photo and amounts of leftovers used.
- You can also get extra points for turning a leftover dish into another dish, for example Bolognese meat turned into cottage pie, using up food that's near its use by date and turning food scraps into ingredients, for example turning potato peels into a crispy topping for your cottage pie.
- You can also get an extra point if your recipe contains a review from a friend or a relative.

Once Entrants have designed their recipe and have prepared the dish, you as their parent, guardian or leader are responsible for submitting it.
